Denver, CO - Northstar Investment Advisors President Fred Taylor was recognized by Colorado State Treasurer Walker Stapleton for his service on the Colorado Public School Permanent Investment Board from 2016 to 2018. During his tenure, Taylor and his fellow board members helped invest $900 million to benefit children attending the state's public schools.

The Colorado State Land Board manages lands that the Federal Government granted to Colorado in public trust. In addition to providing sound stewardship of state trust assets, the State Land Board also manages its assets to produce reasonable and consistent income over time.

The lands are held in eight public land trusts, which benefit public schools and public institutions. The Public School Investment Fund Board, established in 2016, directs the fund's investments. Taylor was among the original members of the board.

Taylor has a long record of community service and currently serves as vice-chairman and treasurer for the Children's Hospital Colorado Foundation Board and chairman of the hospital's investment committee and is a board member for CollegeInvest. Fred is past chairman of the investment committees of The Denver Foundation, the Colorado Zoological Trust, The Women's Foundation of Colorado and Kent Denver School.
